

OrthoPediatrics Corp. to Sponsor the Annual International Pediatric Orthopaedic Symposium (IPOS)

November 19, 2018

Sponsorship includes a pre-course meeting in addition to four workshops on a variety of topics

WARSAW, Ind., Nov. 19, 2018 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- OrthoPediatrics Corp. (NASDAQ:KIDS), a company exclusively focused on advancing the field of pediatric orthopedics, announced today that it is a Double-Diamond sponsor of the International Pediatric Orthopedic Symposium (IPOS), taking place November 27 to December 1, 2018 in Orlando, Florida. IPOS, a branch of the Pediatric Orthopedic Society of North America, is a leading educational meeting for pediatric orthopedic surgeons, with a strong focus on resident, fellow, and early career surgeon learning and development.

Mark Throdahl, President and CEO of OrthoPediatrics, commented, "We are excited for another great year of this event! Our continued partnerships with leading organizations such as IPOS demonstrate our dedication towards advancing the field of pediatric orthopedics through medical education. We are proud to provide valuable learning opportunities for surgeons as we focus on improving orthopedic solutions for children and support the growing adoption of our products."

The Company continues to be actively engaged in all aspects of the meeting, including sponsoring a pre-course meeting on "Villains & Heroes: Don't Let Your Implant Be Two-Face", during which orthopedic surgeons will highlight lessons and frightening tales from fracture repair spinal fusion and limb lengthening. In addition to the pre-course, the Company will host four workshop sessions on a variety of topics, including early onset scoliosis, pediatric orthopedic trauma, and deformity correction.

OrthoPediatrics will feature a selection of its products at the Company's booth (#103 & #105) at the IPOS meeting, including its new Pediatric Nailing Platform | Femur system and FIREFLY® Pedicle Screw Navigation Guides.
