

OrthoPediatrics Corp. to Sponsor the Annual International Pediatric Orthopaedic Symposium (IPOS)

November 20, 2019

The Company will sponsor a pre-course meeting in addition to five spotlight sessions on a variety of topics

WARSAW, Ind., Nov. 20, 2019 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- OrthoPediatrics Corp. (NASDAQ:KIDS), a company focused exclusively on advancing the field of pediatric orthopedics, announced today that it will continue its support as a Double-Diamond sponsor of the International Pediatric Orthopedic Symposium (IPOS), taking place December 3-7 in Orlando, Florida. IPOS, a branch of the Pediatric Orthopedic Society of North America, is a leading educational meeting for pediatric orthopedic surgeons.

Mark Throdahl, President and CEO of OrthoPediatrics, commented, "We greatly value our partnership with POSNA as it provides the opportunity to continue educating and developing pediatric surgeons. Meetings such as IPOS help drive advancements in our field because of the knowledge, best practices, and training that attendees are exposed to."

OrthoPediatrics will sponsor a pre-course entitled "Super Smash Brothers: Pediatric Elbow vs. Monkey Bars." The course will explore various aspects of supracondylar humerus fractures. Additionally, the Company will host five workshop sessions. Covered topics will include spinal disorders, techniques for pediatric foot and ankle deformity correction, orthopedic trauma, hexapod procedures, and neuromuscular treatment.

OrthoPediatrics will highlight three recently launched systems, the two Cannulated Screw Systems and the PediFoot System as well as the newly acquired Orthex Hexapod External Fixation System, at the Company's booth (#100 & #101) at the IPOS meeting.
